

Operation Barn SNIP employs the Trap-Neuter-Return (TNR) method for controlling outdoor cat populations.

TNR is the only method proven to be humane and effective at controlling feral cat population growth. Using this technique, all cats in a colony (the term used to describe a groups of cats living in one area) are trapped, spayed or neutered (altered) and vaccinated. Feral cats are returned to their territory where caregivers provide them with regular food and shelter and lifelong care. Young kittens as well as friendly adults, are generally placed in foster care to be adopted out to good homes.

The benefits of a TNR colony

- ☑ The cats are healthier since they have been vaccinated and altered
- ☑ The population stops exploding because they are altered
- ☑ There is an initial reduction in numbers as friendly cats and kittens are removed for adoption
- ☑ Over time the number of cats in the area drops
- ☑ An established colony protects its territory from new cats—the rate of new cats appearing slows dramatically when the colony is managed
- ☑ Nuisance behavior associated with unaltered cats stops, resulting in less complaints and happier neighbors

The goal of Project TNR, a program of New Jersey Animal Rights Alliance, is to introduce Trap-Neuter-Return to communities as the humane, effective and cost-effective method of controlling feral cat populations. Trap-Neuter-Return is a comprehensive program that will result in lower animal control costs, fewer to no births, reduction of nuisance complaints by residents and the alleviation of public health concerns.
